

ADVANCING SOCIAL CHANGE CLINIC

Fall 2025

Professor Lindsey Webb

Students in the Advancing Social Change Clinic partner with local or national organizations and/or policymakers who are working to advance social justice. Students will be exposed to the philosophy of movement lawyering, including principles of organizing and strategic communications, the use of data in advocacy, and storytelling, as well as the ways in which society is impacted by political and legislative efforts. This course will benefit students interested in social justice, community organizing, local and state legislation, and the study of social change.

Students in this course will attend a seminar and engage in projects supporting the goals of the Clinic's community partners. Those projects will be dictated by the needs of those partners. This course will give priority to qualified students in the part-time program at Denver Law, and all the seminar classes will meet on the weekends dedicated to part-time program classes.

Are there any prerequisites?

Students must have completed their first full year in the part-time program to enroll in the Advancing Social Change Clinic. (Full-time law students may also apply and must also have completed their first year of law school.)

Are classes required?

The mandatory clinic seminar will take place each weekend dedicated to part-time program classes.

How many credits will I receive?

Students will enroll for six credits. Three are in-class credits; three are out-of-class credits.

What kind of time commitment is involved?

The Advancing Social Change Clinic is a significant time commitment. Students should expect to spend approximately 15- 20 hours a week on fieldwork, in addition to preparing for and attending the clinic seminar. The fieldwork hours can be completed at flexible times such as evenings and weekends, in consultation with the professor and relevant clinic partners.

Where can I get more information?

- Online at law.du.edu/student-law-office and on our Instagram @denver_law_clinical_programs.
- At our in-person spring recruitment events the week of March 3rd, 2025, at the Sturm College of Law.
- At the Student Law Office located in suite 335 of the Ricketson Law Building.

How do I apply?

- Applications can be accessed on the Clinical Programs website at law.du.edu/student-law-office the week that applications are open.
- Applications for Fall 2025 will be open from Mon March 3rd, 2025, at 9:00am - Sun March 10th, 2025, at 11:59pm. Late Applications will not be accepted.