BEGINNER'S GUIDE TO THE BAR

OVERVIEW

Introduction

Each year, about 1,300 recent law school graduates or relocating attorneys sit for the Colorado Bar Examination (the Bar). The exam is held twice a year in July and February.

Exam results are announced by publication of the names of all passing test-takers on the Colorado Supreme Court's website. The results announcement typically occurs about 10 weeks after the Bar.

Although studying for the Bar primarily takes place in the two and one-half months before the exam following graduation, students should begin thinking about the Bar beginning on their first day of law school.

Which Bar Exam Will You Take?

Depending on when you graduate, you will take one of three different versions of the Colorado bar exam:

- Uniform Bar Exam (UBE): for students graduating and taking the Colorado bar exam by February 2028.
- NextGen Bar Exam: For students graduating and taking the Colorado bar exam in July 2028 or later.

Ask Academic Advising or the DU Bar Success Program if you're unsure which exam you'll face.

Important Note: This guide provides only a cursory overview. It is designed to provide information to students and mentors early in a student's law school career. Students should carefully and thoroughly review the rules and relevant publications of the bar examiners in the jurisdiction in which they are sitting to ensure they have the most accurate, up-to-date information on applying, sitting for, and getting admitted to the bar.

Three Bar Formats in Transition

Colorado is transitioning from the Uniform Bar Exam (UBE) to the NextGen Bar Exam by July 2028. Here's a breakdown of each format:

- UBE (through February 2028): Two-day exam: 6 essays (3 hrs), 2 performance tests (3 hrs), 200 multiple-choice questions (6 hrs).
- NextGen Bar Exam (July 2028 onward): 1.5-day exam with integrated skills-based blocks: each includes 2 short answer/ MCQ sets, 1 performance task, and 40 MCQs. Memorization is less emphasized; lawyering skills and analysis are central.

Assessing Bar Passage Risk

Empirical studies show the best predictor of students' bar passage rate is first year law school grades. The next best predictors are LSAT scores, participation in the Bar Success Program (see below), and enrollment in Legal Analysis Strategies (see below). Accordingly, students who have lower first year GPAs or who came into law school with lower LSAT scores should strongly consider taking each of the steps outlined in this guide to increase their chances of passing the Bar.

Despite the ability to identify various correlations with Bar passage rate, students can take many steps to greatly enhance their chances of passing the Bar. Regarding LSAT predictions, many law schools — particularly Denver Law — manage to routinely achieve bar passage rates that exceed their LSAT predicted rates.

PREPARING FOR THE BAR

Generally, students should plan to spend eight to ten weeks learning, preparing and practicing for the Bar. Bar preparation is a full-time ‘job’ upon graduation, consisting of 50-60 hours per week of prep courses, workshops, studying, practicing, and learning through practice. In general, during the bar prep period students should probe, ponder, analyze, and work through about 2,000 practice MBE questions, hundreds of essay questions, and a dozen or so MPT exams. Students have many resources at their disposal to help with their studying and preparation.

Commercial Prep Companies

In 2023, the University of Denver entered into a partnership with Themis Bar Review to provide a free bar review commercial course to all Sturm College of Law JD graduates for at least three years. The classes of 2024, 2025, 2026 and 2027 will receive a complimentary Themis Bar Review course. This initiative is possible thanks to a generous gift from the Sturm Family Foundation.

The DU Bar Success Program

The DU Bar Success Program consists of three core components. First, students are encouraged to take a course during their second year called Intermediate Legal Analysis (L4015). This is a skills-based course designed to develop the learning and analytical strategies necessary for success in law school, including rule synthesis and application, statutory interpretation, case analysis and briefing, fact evaluation, discernment of legal principles and theories, and effectiveness in written communication. This course is required for students who had a first-year grade point average below 3.0, but is open to all students interested in improving their learning, legal analysis skills, communication, and writing skills.

Second, students can take a course called Legal Analysis Strategies (L4032) during their last semester of law school. This course provides students with instruction, guidance, and feedback to develop foundational learning and practitioner skills necessary to achieve success on both the bar exam and in the legal profession as skilled legal analysts. Substantive topics covered include core bar exam subjects. Students who have a grade point average below 3.0 after their first year of law school are required to take Legal Analysis Strategies, but it is recommended for all students.

Third, students are offered a post-graduate study program, called the DU Bar Success Program (DUBS), designed to supplement commercial bar review courses. This supplement is free to Denver Law graduates and consists primarily of weekly problem-solving workshops and mock bar exams with individual writing feedback on at least a dozen writing assignments from DUBS programming. The program also includes the opportunity for one-on-one counseling and feedback with bar exam coaches regarding test-taking strategies, bar exam essay/MPT writing, and multiple-choice performance, which are offerings that substantively supplement what is offered by the commercial bar review courses. Students can choose which sessions they attend.

Course Selection

Bar preparation is intense. Commercial programs frequently cover large topic areas in just one, two, or three morning sessions. The more students can learn and familiarize themselves with Bar subjects before preparation, the quicker and easier it will be for them to re-learn and retain the Bar subjects during the stressful post-graduation preparation period.

Students should keep in mind that the subject matter covered during the first year of law school is tested on both the MEE (essay) and MBE (multiple choice) portions of the Bar.

Students only have so much time to take classes during law school. They will, undoubtedly, have strong views as to which classes they should take to enhance their practice skills, learn a substantive area of law, or which they simply find interesting. While students should take courses they are interested in, they should not ignore some of the more difficult subject matter courses that will appear on the Bar. The following graphic shows the topics on the Bar, along with corresponding coursework that covers these topics.

Plan Ahead Based on Your Graduation Date

Knowing which bar exam you'll take can help you choose the right mix of doctrinal and skills-based courses.

Taking the UBE? Prioritize memorization-heavy subjects like Trusts & Estates, Secured Transactions, and Family Law.

Facing NextGen? Prioritize experiential courses that develop legal writing, client counseling, and integrated problem-solving.

Minimum Passing UBE Score by Jurisdiction

These 41 jurisdictions have adopted the UBE, meaning they utilize all three standardized exam components: the MEE, MBE and MPT. Many other states have also adopted one or two components of the UBE. States that have adopted all or some of the UBE are more likely to accept transfer scores for exams taken in other states.

Minimum Passing UBE Scores

MINIMUM PASSING UBE SCORE*	JURISDICTION
260	Alabama, Minnesota, Missouri, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Utah
264	Indiana
266	Connecticut, District of Columbia, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Montana, New Jersey, New York, South Carolina, Virgin Islands, Washington
268	Michigan
270	Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Idaho, Maine, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, West Virginia, Wyoming

Since jurisdiction rules and policies change, you are strongly advised to consult the jurisdiction's bar admission agency directly for the most current information.

BAR APPLICATION PROCEDURES

The Application

Students should begin the application process during their graduating academic year. Emails from the law school will remind students about this process and various law school resources can help students complete their application.

Please to reach out to the Career Development Office (CDO) for assistance with the bar exam character and fitness applications.

Financial assistance is available post-law school to help with living expenses, application fees, and bar review courses. Please feel free to reach out to the Student Affairs Office for assistance.

Getting Admitted to Other States

Colorado is a Uniform Bar Examination jurisdiction. Forty jurisdictions have adopted the Uniform Bar Examination (UBE) for either all or part of their exam. This means that students who sit for the Colorado Bar can often transfer their score to get admitted to other states. Students should be aware that the minimum required passing scores vary greatly across UBE jurisdictions. Accordingly, students should strive to earn the highest possible UBE score regardless of jurisdiction, particularly since Colorado has the second highest required passing score out of all of the UBE jurisdictions. Students who are considering practicing in any other state should check with that state's examination requirements to ensure sitting for the Bar in Colorado will transfer, as well as to learn about any admission requirements.

In addition, students should be aware that most states only accept a UBE score if application to the state is made within 3-5 years of sitting of the exam. Hence, students who are considering practicing in other states should consider applying to those states shortly after sitting for the UBE – even if they do not intend to practice in the other state for some time.

Finally, most states allow attorneys to apply to practice by motion. This “admission on motion” application varies from state to state, but usually requires three or five years of practice experience before one can apply by motion.

Students can find a summary of each states' admission requirements in the National Conference of Bar Examiners' Comprehensive Guide to Bar Admission Requirements (online at <http://www.ncbex.org/>).

THE RULES OF PROFESSIONAL CONDUCT EXAM

As a final note, students should be aware that admission to practice in Colorado — as well as any other U.S. jurisdiction save Maryland, Wisconsin and Puerto Rico — requires not only a passing score on the Bar Exam but also a passing score on the Multistate Professional Responsibility Examination (MPRE). The MPRE is a two-hour, sixty question multiple choice test designed to measure knowledge and understanding of lawyers' professional conduct (i.e., ethics). It is administered three times a year, with the law school serving as one venue of administration. It can be taken any time after the 1L year, including after the Bar Exam. However, it must be taken within two years prior to the date of application for admission.

Colorado requires a score of 85 (scaled) on the MPRE for admission, one of the highest score requirements in the U.S. Students are encouraged to complete the MPRE before they begin studying for the Bar so that they need not worry about studying for the two exams at the same time. Moreover, students should try to schedule their test shortly after they complete Denver Law's required ethics course, Legal Profession (L4425), to ensure material is fresh in their mind at the time of the exam. That said, graduates can still study and sit for the MPRE after the Bar exam, but they will not be admitted as attorneys until they have passed the MPRE.

CONCLUSION

The Bar is a daunting challenge, but students should rest assured that, just like tens of thousands of Denver Law students who came before them, they can overcome this challenge. To recap, to maximize their chances at passing, students can take the following steps:

1. Throughout law school, students should focus on becoming experts in learning to learn (self-reflection, spaced-repetition learning, interweaving practice, etc.) and experts in critical reading, analysis, writing, and legal problem-solving.
2. During law school, students should take a majority of the courses tested on the Bar which concern more complex subject matters, and should consider taking the second year course Intermediate Legal Analysis (L4015).
3. During the last semester of law school, students should take the Bar simulation course, Legal Analysis Strategies (L4032).
4. Upon graduation, should study for the Bar like it is a full-time job, completing both a commercial prep course and the supplemental DU Bar Success Program workshops and practice exams.
